

HE AIDED CZOLGOSZ

Sensational Confession of a Thief in St. Louis.

ALSO IMPLICATES EMMA GOLDMAN

Declares the Crime Was Arranged in a St. Louis Saloon.

PART OF HIS STORY DENIED

ST. LOUIS, September 24.—Ed. Sastig, who was arrested this morning at one of the dry goods stores on a charge of petty larceny, is believed to be an accomplice of Czolgosz. When taken before Chief of Detectives Desmond, he made a confession in which he is said to have given all the details of the plot to assassinate President McKinley. In his confession Sastig, it is stated, implicates Frank Harrigan of the Dewey Hotel, Philadelphia, in the plot.

Implicates Emma Goldman.

Sastig says that on the Monday previous to the assassination of President McKinley, he met and Emma Goldman in the Michoud saloon in this city and arranged the details of the murder.

The confession is now being made behind closed doors.

Sastig, Chief Desmond says, declares he was present in Buffalo at the time of President McKinley's assassination, and tied the handkerchief about the hand in which Czolgosz carried the revolver.

A waiter in a restaurant, who says he knows the man under arrest, has just appeared at the office of the Post-Dispatch, and says Sastig was not in Buffalo the day of the murder. The police are investigating.

GOING TO SEE HIS SON.

The Elder Czolgosz Thinks He Can Get Him to Confess.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, September 24.—Paul Czolgosz, father of the assassin, accompanied by his son Waldeck and his unmarried daughter, Victoria, left this city today for Buffalo, N. Y., to see the Minz also accompanied the party at the request of the elder Czolgosz, who is in constant fear that an attempt may be made upon his life, as the result of his son's crime.

While no member of the family has been summoned as a witness at the trial of Leon Czolgosz, both the father and the son Waldeck declared shortly before leaving for Buffalo that they would offer to testify, and expressed the hope that the assassin would receive full pardon.

Immediately upon his arrival at Buffalo the father will seek permission from the authorities for an interview with the assassin. The old man declared this morning that he would make every effort to get a confession of any possible plot from his son. He said he firmly believed that some one induced Leon Czolgosz to commit the crime.

EMMA GOLDMAN SET FREE.

No Evidence on Which Authorities Could Hold Her.

CHICAGO, September 24.—Emma Goldman, the anarchist lecturer, is now a free woman after two weeks' incarceration following the assassination of the President.

Attorney Owens, for the city, informed Magistrate Pratt this morning that the court had freed the men named Miss Goldman's co-conspirators, and that there was no evidence against her.

"Dismissed for want of prosecution; call the next case," said the justice briefly, and in a moment Miss Goldman was shaking hands with her anarchist friends who were in court.

"I have practically no plans for the future," she said to an Associated Press reporter. "I am going to devote myself to the cause of the oppressed, and to the cause of the poor. I am going to write articles for the press, and to give lectures. I am going to do everything in my power to help the oppressed and the poor."

WHITNEY QUITS BRITISH TURF.

His Action Causes Comment Among Racing Men There.

LONDON, September 24.—The announced retirement of Wm. C. Whitney from the English turf causes regret, but hardly surprise among those who have noted the recent trend of events. It is widely known that feeling that behind Mr. Whitney's published reasons for his withdrawal is the realization of the fact that the attitude of the British turf authorities toward Americans is no longer marked by the absolute impartiality which characterized their conduct in the past.

Whitney's action appears to have been prompted by the fact that the American owners of horses, who have been frequent guests at the American Jockey Club, have been treated with less than the courtesy which they have been accustomed to receive. President Roome's Statement.

In response to a Star reporter's question today for Roome's statement this morning that he was confident the bank would resume payments. The depositors, he stated, numbered about 400 or 500, and the total sum of their deposits was $200,000. "Our assets are $347,000," he remarked.

"What do they consist of?" inquired the reporter.

"Good paper, good notes," was the reply. "As soon as collections can be made upon these notes everything will be all right."

While Mr. Roome and the reporter were talking the paying teller brought the former a letter. After scrutinizing it Mr. Roome said:

"I think he left a special deposit here yesterday to protect this check. As certain as death is the fact that the man who made this deposit is a perfect right to do that."

"We have a perfect right to do that," said Mr. Roome in an explanatory tone to the reporter.

ANXIOUS DEPOSITORS.

There was a line of depositors before the paying teller's window, mostly women, and anxiety was written in unmistakable lines on their faces. From what the reporter overheard, few of them had received the notice published above, and were informed by the paying teller that they were to wait until the next morning. The Star reporter they were sent out yesterday morning. Some of the depositors had given checks to merchants and others Saturday, and the latter had the checks cashed. LIMITATION OF REPRESENTATION.

The Question Coming Up Again in Congress Next Winter.

Southern senators and representatives in the city today are widely discussing the probable course of President Roosevelt with respect to the movement that is likely to be renewed in the next Congress in favor of limiting the representation of those southern states which have enacted laws disfranchising the negro vote.

On the subject, as far as it can be learned, but several representatives propose to ask him to state his position in the matter. The question is considered a vital one by the southern senators and representatives, and they say they cannot leave the attitude of the President too soon.

WAS VICTIM OF HEART FAILURE

Expressions of Respect and Regret From His Fellow Citizens.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

The death of Jeremiah Morrow Wilson occurred this morning at 11 o'clock at the Shoreham Hotel. The end of the great lawyer came as peacefully as the sleep of a child. Half an hour before his death he was conversing about business matters and feeling ill the physician who had been called to his bedside during the night and early this morning were promptly sent for and administered restoratives. Five minutes before 11 o'clock Mr. Wilson turned over in bed as if to sleep and a few minutes later the end came.

A few days ago Mr. Wilson spoke to Mr. Rayner, his associate counsel in the Schley case, and told him that he was feeling ill. He was not a cause for special alarm, and Mr. Wilson attended to matters in connection with the Schley case as usual. Last evening he took dinner with Mr. Rayner and the two were together until 10 o'clock. Mr. Rayner knew nothing of Mr. Wilson's illness during the night until he went to his room this morning at 8 o'clock. He was told that an attack of indigestion had been experienced during the night and a physician had been sent for.

Dr. Corey and Fisher were again at the Shoreham this morning. Mr. Wilson did not get up as usual, but Admiral Schley and he talked with them about the case under inquiry. His Long and Active Career.

He was born in Warren county, Ohio, November 25, 1828, so that he was in the seventy-third year of his age. He received an academic education and then studied and practiced law. He was judge of the court of common pleas of Fayette county, Indiana, from 1860 to 1865, when he resigned.

Man Universally Loved.

Mr. Louis A. Dent, register of wills, said: "It is a truism to say that Judge Wilson held the universal respect of the bench and of Washington, but the highest tribute that can be said to him is that he was as universally loved by them; no man more so. From the day in the reconstruction period when he began to rank among the leading debaters in the House of representatives upon the constitutional question, he was loved by all who knew him. He was loved by all who knew him. He was loved by all who knew him."

Resolutions of Respect.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, of which Judge Wilson was president, was in session when the intelligence of his sudden death was received. STORY OF THE CRIME

Brought Out at the Trial of Czolgosz Today.

WITNESSES OF THE DEED TESTIFY

The Assassin Maintains His Attitude of Indifference.

HIS FATHER GOING TO HIM

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 24.—The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley was resumed today with every prospect that it would be concluded with adjournment of the court at 4 o'clock. It was the opinion of the court that the trial would not be concluded at that time, but it was not until the trial was resumed today with every prospect that it would be concluded with adjournment of the court at 4 o'clock.

The crowd about the court room today was slightly larger than yesterday. The vigilance of the police was in no way relaxed. The same careful scrutiny of each person entering the court was observed. The court room, owing to the care exercised by the sheriffs and police as to whom they admitted, was nearly empty fifteen minutes before the time for opening, but it filled quite rapidly after that.

There were many more ladies in the audience today than yesterday. The prisoners were brought over from the jail at 9:45 a.m. and placed in the same chair that he occupied yesterday. The members of the grand jury which indicted him were brought to the court room by the district attorney and occupied seats back of the clerk's desk.

Anarchists Asked Admission.

It became known this morning that application for seats had been made by representatives of several anarchist papers, but they have been refused.

Justice White arrived exactly at 10, and the trial was resumed. The jury members were sworn and Samuel J. Fields, clerk of the court, read the indictment. The trial was resumed. The jury members were sworn and Samuel J. Fields, clerk of the court, read the indictment.

Dr. Mann Cross-Examined.

"Was the condition which you found at the autopsy what you expected from the nature of the wounds which the President received?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"It was not expected and was very unusual. I never saw anything just exactly like it," replied Dr. Mann.

"To what then do you attribute the symptoms which you discovered, the gangrenous condition of the wound?"

"It is very difficult to explain it. It may be the result of several things. I think it would be necessary for further examinations to be made before any definite explanation could be made. That would be the opinion of the pathologists."

Some Causes of Gangrene.

"The entrance of germs into the parts may have been one of the causes. The very low state of vitality may have been one cause. The action of the pancreatic juice may have been one; undoubtedly it contributed to it."

"The terms which you speak of are present, I understand, in all our bodies?"

"Yes."

"And make their work prominent when the body is in any way injured?"

"That is true."

THE INQUIRY PUT OFF

Adjournment of the Schley Court.

MR. WILSON'S DEATH ANNOUNCED

The Day's Proceedings Suddenly Ended.

TO BE RESUMED TOMORROW

The session of the Schley court of inquiry was brought to a sudden close today by the announcement at twelve minutes after the court had assembled of the sudden death of Mr. Jere M. Wilson of counsel for Admiral Schley. The court was promptly adjourned as a mark of respect for the eminent lawyer.

Admiral Dewey had opened the court promptly at 11 o'clock. Commander Bates, the chief engineer on the Texas, was the first of the witnesses called, and he was asked to approve the stenographic report of his testimony, which he did without suggesting a single correction.

The judge advocate laid before the witnesses two questions by the court as follows: Q. Are you positive about the amount of coal reported on hand on the Texas May 26? A. Yes, sir, as near as anybody could be positive of the amount of coal on board a ship. There is no absolutely correct means of telling the amount of coal on the ship.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE COURT.

The announcement was made to the court by Mr. Rayner in the following language: "I have a very sad announcement to make to the court. I have just heard of the death of Judge Wilson. I left him at 10 o'clock this morning slightly indisposed. I was with him until 8 o'clock and left him at 10. We have confirmed the rumor through the telephone that he has just died at the Shoreham Hotel, and I would respectfully ask the court, if it may be, the approval of the court, to adjourn for today."

Admiral Schley Shocked.

Admiral Schley upon hearing the news said: "The news is so shocking that I cannot trust myself to give expression to my estimate of the man. I have not only a clear headed and brilliant friend, but also a dear and much beloved friend. I am shocked beyond measure at the news, and find myself unable to accept the report."

Effect on the Inquiry.

Admiral Dewey said that he did not think the proceedings of the court would be interrupted by the death of Mr. Wilson's death. The report, he added, was another adjournment on account of the funeral, but beyond that he did not anticipate there would be further cessation of the proceedings.

"Judge Wilson's death," he added, "is a severe loss. It is a loss not only to the court at this time. His amiability, conservatism and long experience in public affairs rendered his presence here most acceptable. His death is a severe bereavement in his death. We had been friends for twenty-five years, and I had come to both love and respect him. His many excellent qualities of head and heart."

Witnesses Slated for Today.

Witnesses were slated for today by the Navy Department in the Schley court of inquiry, with the end in view of bringing out the facts concerning the condition of affairs at Cienfuegos before the arrival of the Mar-Cella, under command of Captain McCalla, and at Santiago, when the flying squadron first reached the vicinity of that port before making its retrograde movement toward Key West. The friends of the admiral have claimed that he had no information that he was expected to communicate with the Cuban insurgents.

Spencer R. Wood, who was in command of the dispatch boat Dupont, with the view of showing that the commander-in-chief had the information previous to McCalla's arrival. The commanders of the scout ships Yale, St. Charles, and the USS Albatross, were called with the expectation on the part of the department of bringing out testimony to effect the vindication of the admiral's conduct.

Departing Cabinet Members.

Secretary Long left Washington yesterday afternoon to join Miss Long on the train which is taking her home.

Secretary Gage will leave Washington Thursday for Colorado, where he will pass his vacation. He expects to be gone until October 17. He was on his way to Colorado when President McKinley was shot. He returned at once to Buffalo.
